FORD PROPOSAL FOR PLANT AT SHOALS IS OUT

Sec. Weeks Submits It to Congress Sans Recommendation.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Feb. 2.—Henry Ford's proposal for the Government project at Muscle Shoals, Ala., was submitted today to congress by Secretary Weeks, for "such action as congress may deem appropriate." The only suggestions contained in the letter of transmission related to specific clauses in the contract and the desirability of amendments which would, in the event the proposal be accepted by congress, further safeguard the government's interests.

"In the event Mr. Ford's proposal is accepted," Secretary Weeks declared, "the government must make new appropriations amounting to $10,000,000 to $50,000,000, of which Mr. Ford will have the benefit for approximately one hundred years at four per cent."

In the event the offer be rejected, the Secretary gave it as his opinion that dam No. 2 (Wilson dam) should be completed by the government and that the power requirements for commercial purposes the benefits to navigation as well as the possible needs of the government would warrant this expenditure.

Might Sell Product.
"If this were done," he continues, "the government may itself undertake to sell the product to the best advantage. In such case the amount of the government's present proposed investment would be very materially reduced, because dam No. 3, costing from $23,000,000 to $25,000,000 would not be built, and it would not be necessary to make the full installation of power plant on the Wilson dam until the market required such installation."

"This partial installation," the Secretary explains, "would effect a saving of at least the sum of $3,000,000, leaving, according to the chief of engineers' estimate, not to exceed $22,300,000 to be invested by the government at this time instead of $40,000,000 to $50,000,000."

The question of unemployment is recognized as a factor to be considered by congress in connection with its treatment of the Muscle Shoals question.

"At this time," the Secretary points, "when there is a large amount of unemployment it is not without importance to consider the advantage to the large amount of labor required in undertaking this development. I, therefore, urge that congress give early consideration to this matter, not only to settle a contraverted question, but to furnish employment on a large scale."

The Secretary explains his action in sending the offer to congress by declaring he is without authority in law to accept Mr. Ford's offer, or "dispose of the property as a whole, either by sale or by lease," and that "it is peculiarly the province of congress to weigh the considerations which will pass to the respective parties to the proposed arrangements."

Would Limit Contract.
"I believe it will be a policy," the Secretary wrote, "to limit the contract to a term of fifty years (instead of 100) to conform with the es-

DURKES INTERESTED IN PURCHASE OF TWO BANKS IN MINNESOTA

Dixon Banker Party to Big Transaction in Lyon County.

W. C. Durkes, president of the City National Bank, and his brother-in-law, R. C. Canterbury of Chicago, returned this morning from a business trip of considerable importance to Lyon County, Minn. Mr. Durkes left Dixon Monday morning of this week.

"During the few days that he was away from Dixon Mr. Durkes has become financially interested in two of the prominent banks of Lyon county—he and his brother-in-law buying the two institutions outright. One of the banks is capitalized at $75,000 and the other at $50,000."

Superintendent of Banks S. B. Duea, of the State Department of Banking, is also interested with Messrs. Durkes and Canterbury in the two banks in question. He has resigned his position with the State of Minnesota to give his personal attention to the operation and management of the banks.

In Wealthy County.
These banks are located in one of the wealthiest counties in Minnesota, the cities in which the banks are located is surrounded by acres of the best land in the state.

Mr. Durkes will not be connected with either bank in any official position, so that it will not be necessary for him to leave Dixon, but he will have a large part to do with the management of the banks.

Mr. Durkes declared today, when seen at the City National Bank, that money conditions in that section of Minnesota are good. None of the banks have taken advantage of the bankruptcy law of the state. All the banks have been able to hold the farmers up until the depression is over. "Farmers there declare," said Mr. Durkes, "that conditions are getting considerably better and within a year that part of their state will be over the 'hard times' proposition."

Mr. Durkes says that Minnesota is having one of the worst blizzards he has had in many years. There is much snow everywhere in the state.

INJURIES RECEIVED IN DISASTER FATAL TO MR. SHAUGHNESSY

Second Asst. Postmaster General, Known Here, Died This Morn.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Feb. 2.—Edward H. Shaughnessy of Chicago second assistant postmaster general died here early today at a hospital from injuries received in the Knickerbocker theater disaster Saturday night.

Although Mr. Shaughnessy's injuries were known to be of a critical nature his condition had shown improvement up to yesterday and his death was unexpected. Attending physicians at the army hospital, to which Mr. Shaughnessy was taken when removed from the wreckage of the motion picture theatre several hours after the collapse of its roof, which caused nearly a hundred fatalities, said his death followed a sudden heart collapse shortly after midnight. This was preceded, they said, by development of internal complications late yesterday. Mr. Shaughnessy suffered a broken pelvis and other injuries in the accident, but for several days had shown a resistive power which made physicians hopeful of his ultimate recovery.

Mr. Shaughnessy's wife and his 10-year-old daughter, Ruth, both of whom are now recovering from injuries received in the theatre disaster, had not been informed of his death at an early hour today. They are being treated at another hospital. The daughter having both arms broken while her mother is suffering from a fractured rib and shock.

The death of the second assistant postmaster general brings the fatality list of the disaster as now recorded by the police, up to 98.

Interest of Voters is Essential Says Rockford Teacher

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Feb. 2.—The future of democracy rests on the interest and intelligence of the voters of our country, Florence E. Jansen, assistant professor of government at Rockford college said in an address today before the school of citizenship of the Illinois League of Women Voters here.

"Unless there is a wise participation of our citizens in the discussions and decisions of the manifold problems that face our day," she said, "in the form of our government, our social and economic relations, and in international affairs, democracy is a failure."

"The indifference of many women to the ballot is probably due to a fear of the unknown rather than the inability to understand. Class discussion based on newspaper clippings and magazine illustrations of various subjects studied in the text book awaken an interest in the outside world, and make the subject matter of government an interesting living thing. This familiarity with the institution of government makes future opinion and more intelligent citizens of our great republic."

Efforts to Make Employees Partners in Business Failed

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Worcester, Mass., Feb. 2.—The effort of the management of the Harvard Knitting Mills here to make their employees partners in the business has not been a success to date, Charles N. Winslow, head of Winslow, Bolt & Company, owners, announced after a two-year trial. In a printed report to the employees-partners he said there has been a lack of cooperation to increase production and cut down waste, and that eight percent of the product of the mills last week was sent back for repairs or thrown out.

President Winslow pointing out that each employee had been given not only a cash interest in the business, but the right to a proportionate share of profits each year, said that unless conditions changed it would be necessary to give some of the employees-partners permission to resign. He said there had been instances in which employees made elaborate attempts to be discharged so that they might draw out their interest in the firm. He estimated that forty percent of the number of employees who were not cooperating.

The mills were said to be among the few in the country that had not reduced wages, notwithstanding no profits had been shown in the last two years.

REFERENDUM ON WORK OF CHAMBER FOR '22 IS NOW BEING TAKEN

Blanks Are in Hands of Members—To Secure
Favored Plans.

Chamber of Commerce members were called upon today by mail referendum to voice an opinion as to the activities to be undertaken by Dixon's community organization during the coming year. Under the plan adopted for securing a full expression as to what members want the Chamber to take up during its second year of organization, blanks were mailed out last night. Each member is requested to write down his or her ideas and return the blank before Saturday noon of this week.

The suggestions submitted are to be used in revising the three year program adopted as the working document at the end of the organization campaign of twelve months ago. This opportunity is afforded members in connection with the stock taking activities of the present week, in order that the 1922 program will reflect membership sentiment, as it exists today.

The blank provides two lines upon which members are requested to write their "pet" suggestions in reply to the following questions:

1—What activities do you believe the Dixon Chamber of Commerce should undertake during the coming year for the benefit of your business or profession?

2—What activities should the Dixon Chamber of Commerce undertake for the good of the city as a whole?

To enable the Board of Directors to be newly elected in part this month, to ascertain membership sentiment upon the projects already before the Chamber, the following activities are listed at the bottom of the blank with the request that members indicate their order of importance by the figures 1 to 5 inclusive:

Clean-Up Week, Clean Streets, City Plan, City Scales, Extension of City Limits, Freight Bill Auditing, Good Roads Improved Schools, Industrial Development, Marketing of Country Roads, Mercantile Rating Bureau, Municipal Incinerator, Public Health, Tourist Camp Improvements, Public Rest Room, Railway Track Scale, Soldiers' Memorial, Street Traffic Regulations, Supervised Playgrounds, Trade Extension.

COSTLY BLAZE AT BYERHOFF'S HOME LAST EVE

Family Away from Home When Fire Started.

The William Byerhoff residence, 502 East Third street, was badly damaged by fire last evening about 8:30. The blaze started in the basement from an over-heated furnace and quickly found its way to the upper floors between the walls to the roof.

For a time the entire residence was threatened with destruction, the heavy west gale fanning the flames and spreading them to all parts of the house. Two streams of water were played on the interior of the house, flooding almost every room in the structure. None of the members of the family were at home at the time and the flames had gained considerable headway when they were discovered by neighbors and the alarm turned in. The furnishings in the house were badly damaged by water. The damage is estimated at about $1,000 which is covered by insurance.

Candy Shop Blind to Cache of Real Booze

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Feb. 2.—The proprietor and a young girl employee of a candy shop today were charged with bootlegging after a raid which resulted from a "tip" given to dry-agents at the Chicago Automobile show.

One agent remarked in admiring one of the 1922 sedan models that a compartment "would just about hold a case, maybe two."

"Sure, but where would the owner get the booze?" queried the officer.

A pretty girl immediately handed them cards advertising the candy shop, then disappeared in the crowd. Yesterday they presented the cards, obtained a "hint" and found some more nestling beneath rows of bonbons.

The owner denied knowledge of the liquor. The girl store manager was arrested with him.

Athletics Played Off Feet Wednesday Night at Freeport

The Dixon A. C.'s basketball team was completely played off their feet at Freeport last evening when they were defeated by the Y. M. C. A. team of that city by an overwhelming score of 79 to 17. The A. C.'s were weakened by the loss of Vaughan who is in the east for several days, and one or two of the other members were crippled up and unable to play their regular game.

Manager Wilhelm had no excuses to offer for their defeat, however, other than that the Freeport tilters caged the ball from all angles, while the locals were not so successful. The Freeport team are artists at the game and presented the stiffest opposition the Athletics have met this season. Plans are now under way for a game with the Mendota team next week at that place.

Frick Coke Company here today, had been brought to the surface at noon from the entry, one and one-half miles from the foot of the shaft, where the accident occurred. Twenty men, it was stated, were still in the mine and experienced miners working feverishly to reach them, expressed the opinion that all were dead.

Gates, Pa., Feb. 2.—Seven men are known to have been killed and 22 others are entombed in a room one and one-half miles from the mouth of the Gates mine at the H. C. Frick Coke Company near here, as the result of an explosion early today. Trained rescue crews from all parts of the Connelville coal field are working in relays trying to reach the shut-in men.

The mine is one of the largest in this vicinity and normally employs about 1000 men. It has been working day and night shifts and a large number of men were in the entries and rooms when the explosion occurred. In a section so far back in the workings that its forces was spent before it could reach the bottom of the shaft and damage the hoisting machinery.

All to the Rescue.
According to reports in the village this morning a number of men went to work at the usual time and making their way to the shaft on foot were astonished to hear that an accident had happened. They were immediately organized into rescue crews and under the leadership of Supt. Sam Brown set out to release the imprisoned men.

The alarm was sent down into the village and all of the shift miners immediately turned out to do their part. Even the women joined them, but no one was permitted to go into the shaft other than trained rescue men.

As the day advanced, alarming reports spread through the region, one of them to the effect that all of the entombed men had lost their lives. There was nothing, however, official in support of the statement.

PEP! THAT'S SLOGAN OF WOMAN MAYOR AT 80

Magnetic Springs, O.—Meet Mrs. Mary McFadden, live-wire, 80-year-old mayor of this town, who has put the magnetism in Magnetic Springs, and already started to draw attention to her town.

Appointed when Mayor N. C. Brown resigned, Mrs. McFadden immediately adopted "pep" as her working slogan and happenings have been chalked up at a rapid pace. Thus far she has:

Ordered Marshal W. R. Bainbridge to oust bootleggers and halt gambling.

Adopted a curfew that will keep kids off the streets after 8:30 in the evening.

Moved her own office out of a cold town hall into warm quarters in a hotel.

Told poolroom owners she'll close 'em up if minors are allowed in their places.

Announced she will serve coffee and sandwiches at all council meetings to insure full attendance.

Started a campaign for a bond issue to build an addition to the town hall and to buy more fire apparatus.

"And that's only the beginning," she says, "The town needs livelier up and I'm going to do it."

Mrs. McFadden has been Republican all her life.

How did they happen to pick her for mayor? Well, she's been taking a keen interest in town affairs for many years and law officials have drawn her criticism.

MRS. MARY McFADDEN.

So it was agreed—"Let's let her run the whole show."

BULLETIN

EXPECT MISTRIAL

By Associated Press Leased Wire

San Francisco, Feb. 2.—The Arbuckle jury, out since last night, had not reported at midday and disagreement is the general expectation of court followers.

Man's Death 2 Years Ago Basis for New Action.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Mound City, Ill., Feb. 2.—Mrs. Frank Troester and Ernest Lindsey, 19 years old, were charged jointly in a warrant today with the alleged murder two years ago of Mr. Troester the woman's husband.

Mrs. Troester is employed at the state hospital at Joliet and Lindsey is serving a term in the state reformatory at Pontiac having pleaded guilty to complicity in the $16,000 robbery last October of the Citizens Bank of Peoria.

Lindsey implicated Henry Crippen, a constable and John E. Smoot, in the bank robbery. Their trial is being held in circuit court and Lindsey is here as a witness for the state.

Mrs. Louise Allen, a sister of Troester, swore out the murder warrant. Lindsey roomed at the Troester farm house at the time of Troester's death.

Aurora Fair to Be Held August 18-26

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Aurora, Ill., Feb. 2.—Announcement was made today that the Central States Fair and Exposition which holds its first meeting in Aurora this year has been assigned the ten day period from Aug. 18 to 25 inclusive for its show. Prizes of more than $125,000 will be given in premiums, prizes and attractions.

Other great fairs of the middle west will be held in the ten day periods following the exposition at Aurora as follows:

Wisconsin and Iowa State fairs (held at same time).

Minnesota State; Illinois State and Ark-Sar-Ben, Omaha. The Illinois date is about a month later this year than usual.

County representation, appeared a dead issue when the convention recessed for the purpose of conferences. Several downstates, including Delegate Greene of Champaign, served notice on their colleagues that they had withdrawn their support of "county representation."

"I favor restricting Cook county, but I am sure there is a more effective plan of limitation than this county representation plan," Delegate Greene declared.

His Primary System

Illinois, he continued, has gradually encroached upon and violated the principles of representative government through the "enxeneable primary system" and subsequent measures.

Delegate Michael of Chicago launched another attack against the Anti-Saloon League, which he characterized as "a prostitute and contaminator of legislative assemblies" which has "stolen money from the people" to save its own job.

"Nearly every newspaper editor in the state has found them out and condemned them for what they are," he declared.

Joint consideration of proposals for senate and lower house apportionment seemed likely following the recess this evening.

Edwardsville, Ill., Feb. 1.—Harry Lohse, a bachelor, age 39, of Prairieville, was sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary at Joliet, Ill., here last night, after a jury found him guilty of the murder of Mrs. Stella Weineke, who with her husband was shot to death in the Lohse home, Oct. 5, 1921.

A SMILE AND A SONG—

When life is pressing hard its burdens
on you
And you're feeling like an Atlas with your load,
When heavy laden clouds shut out
your sunshine,
And all the world seems dull and gray
and old,
The grass is choked with weeds—the flowers drooping
And pretty little worries fill your day.
Then suddenly perhaps the clouds
have lifted,
A shaft of sunlight turns the world
all gold,
A lark is trilling from a fence post
near you,
A friend rides by and hails you with a smile.
Our old world is a good place, after all.
You only need a smile to start you smiling.
A lark to sing to you of Heaven's gate.

GRADUATION FROCKS, SIMPLE

WHITE ORGANDIE—
Why not in Dixon? The Clinton
Herald prints the following item in regard to graduation dresses, and the thought in the minds of readers will be, why does Dixon not follow this sensible plan? The clipping:
Senior High school girls have decided to make themselves the censors of their own graduation and at a meeting held at school yesterday afternoon
said: "It will be simple white organdie dresses, white hose, white slippers and no flowers." That's the flat and when these sweet girl graduates say these things with emphasis, that's that. Of course Miss Billings is their beloved and admired leader and censor, and she is glad they are all so sensibly sweet in their plans.

tions.

A very appetizing scramble supper

lowed by an evening of music, cards

Music Mabel's Best Director

Mabel Normand

If you want to be a vamp—
Or a wild woman—
Or a baby doll—
Or any of the other things you see in the movies—you can! At least so says Mabel Normand, screen star.

All you've got to do, according to Miss Normand, is practice to appropriate music.

"Music," she says, "will do anything to me. If I come to the studio feeling particularly upstage and patrician—I suppose there is such a feeling as patrician?—the sound of a little tough music will set my heart to jigging, my feet to wiggling and my pulses to jumping. In a trice, I am lifted out of my ladylike languor into the person the music is talking about. The minut-ti type of melody has just the opposite effect. Right away it slows me down, puts my best manners in place, and there I am—a perfect lady."

Has Mood Music Album

Which is why, out of the album of what she calls her "mood music," pretty Mabel chose "When Francis Dances With Me" to be played while she made "Molly-O," her new First National picture.

Molly—well Molly is the sort of girl to whose name shocked relatives invariably—and with good reason—
add the exclamation oh!

As for Francis—it is of his dancing prowess that the "goils" of Tenth Avenue and the Bowery sing
in a melody that has won the shim-mying heels of all New York.

So they played "Francis" for three months while Mabel made "Molly."
"I never tired of it once," says Mabel. "It was the best director I ever had."

FEDERAL HUNTING LICENSES

Passage of the New-Anthony bill to provide for federal licenses to hunt migratory birds and for the establishment of game refuges and public shooting grounds for such birds would affect about 5,000,000 American sportsmen, the Bureau of Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture, estimates. The bill has been favorably reported by the Senate committee on public lands and surveys. In the House the bill is in the committee on agriculture.

The bill provides that each hunter of migratory birds shall obtain a federal license, at a cost of $1 for the season, the licenses to be issued at any postoffice in the United States.
Out of the proceeds not less than 45
per cent is to be spent by the government, through a proposed Migratory Bird Refuge Commission, in buying or renting land suitable for the establishment of migratory game bird refuges which would serve as breeding and feeding places for birds during the period of their flight north, or the closed season, and as public shooting grounds during the open season. An additional 45 per cent will be used for the enforcement of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act and the Lacey Act and the remaining 10 per cent for expenses in issued licenses and other administrative expenses.

The bill provides that the Secretary of Agriculture shall be chairman of the commission, and that other members shall be the Attorney General, the two members of each House of Congress. Rules and regulations governing the administration of the proposed refuges would be placed in the hands of the Secretary of Agriculture. The proposed measure does not in any way obviate the necessity of procuring a state hunting license.

LURE OF THE MOTOR CAR

The community is full of people who know that a motor car is all but indispensable to them but have carelessly assumed that it was not quite convenient to take the step of getting
one. Possibly they might never think it convenient. On the other hand they are also to remember that they cannot afford to do without the car. Compared with walking it multiplies their time by ten. It brings it within their convenience to go when they please, where they please. Life comes this way but once. What we get out of it is what we take as we go along. We must remember what we owe to ourselves, still more what we owe to our families. The opportunity to enjoy many short trips together belongs to the family with a car. Most men see too little of their families; have too little influence, too little part in their lives. The numerous trips with the car changes all that.

A generation ago it might have been thought that the possession of an automobile added that much to individual or family expense. Tradespeople have learned that the average man, the average family, adapt other expenditures to the changed conditions which come with the car. Some whole lines of business have disappeared because families with cars have cut out other classes of expenditures. They are spending something for the privilege of the car but less on other things. They are economists in the best sense; that is, planning expenditures better, so as to provide for the invaluable privileges brought by the automobile.

Not the least of these privileges is that of a family tour some time in the year. Overland travelers note that the great majority of cars far from home carry a whole family or group.
These reduce the individual expense.
It makes it possible for every member of the family or of the car party to enjoy what might not have been convenient had they been dependent on railroads and hotels.

The automobile shows this year
have emphasized the much lower cost of a car compared with two years ago. The opportunity for outings, the better health of the family due to the outdoor life, the uncommon pleasure to all, the fact that it is possible to provide for satisfying this want, lead

many who have never indulged before to enter the list of car users this year. That expectation underlies the enormous attendance at the shows,
such as that in progress in Chicago
this week. The product of skill in design and workmanship was never so great as this year. It is up to the individual to see that he and his family share the good of it all.

THAT GOOD BOOK

You resolved last fall, when the days began to shorten that you would not let the winter get by without reading a few good books. The winter is now half over, and the days are noticeably longer. How many have you read?

Most people, put to an examination of the literary conscience, will have to confess that they've looked over a few magazines, given a daily glance at the newspapers dipped into a fresh novel, perhaps, and let it go at that.
Yet they have just been resolving,
because of Thrift week, now closed, to be more thrifty. And one of the most thrifty things in the world is to read good books. It uses time to good advantage, which is one aspect of thrift, and it improves the powers and adds to the resources, which is an even more important aspect.

It is not too late yet to keep both resolutions. Christmas excitement over, it still seems a long time before spring can open up its enticements. If you haven't in mind the one good book you want to read first, go to the library or to the bookstore and browse around until you find one. If you aren't good at picking out books both interesting and useful, the librarian will help you. The first ten pages are the hardest; they oil up the hinges of your mind. After that it goes freely and you find its exercise
a pleasure.

BETTER FEELING IN IRELAND

Conditions seem wonderfully improved of late. Opposition to the Irish free state within the Sinn Fein ranks is less outspoken. South Ireland is frankly pleased by the new regime, as the Irish themselves take over the government functions. And still more noteworthy is the new attitude of Ulster. "We are interested and not unfriendly spectators," an Ulster leader is quoted as saying to a correspondent. "We sincerely wish success to the new government and we hope it will succeed in reestablishing law and order throughout Ireland. There is no question of our coming in now;
but if they prove successful, who knows what may happen in a year or two?"

This, says the correspondent, accurately sums up the sentiment in Belfast today; and tomorrow, he suggests, that sentiment may be still more friendly toward South Ireland.
The rioting and bloodshed in Belfast has almost wholly died out. The public tension is relaxed. The heretofore truculent Ulster premier, Sir James Craig, has revealed the fact that he has made an agreement with Michael Collins, representing the new free state, which is a virtual recognition by Ulster of the new government and declaration of a community interest therewith. Some of Craig's friends believe that he is likely to be ready to arrange an actual union with the free state in much less time than "a year or two."

All this is particularly pleasing to Americans, whose only fears for Irish freedom and prosperity of late have been lest the Irish themselves should miss the full responsibilities of the new regime through internal dis-ension. If north and south Ireland can agree, Ireland's future will be rosy indeed.

THE INVISIBLE

Ten million letters were carried by the air mail in the last three months.
That's at the rate of 40,000,000 letters
a year.

The cost of carrying a ton of mail
by flying machine averaged $8 a mile in 1920. It was cut to $6 a mile in 1921. The cost soon will be down to $2.50 a mile, due to improved airplanes now being put in use.

The postoffice, which started the air mail service as an experiment in May, 1918, is the first to prove the commercial value of the flying machine.

It requires no stretching of the imagination to picture all mail being carried by the air route. That may come within five years.

Here is a prediction: In a few years
mail will be carried by invisible postmen. Letters and parcels will be loaded into airplanes controlled by wireless.
The airplanes, with nobody aboard,
will rise into air at say, New York,
fly like an arrow and land in San Francisco, operated and steered by wireless.

Important experiments along this line have just been successfully completed in France. Wireless-controlled airplanes, without crews, were

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Burton

"A QUEER RIDDLE"

"What's the difference between a jumping jack and a baby?" asked Mr. Crane.

The storks thought and thought about the riddle Buskins had asked them, the riddle being, "What's the difference between a jumping-jack and a baby?"

Mr. Crane, looking more solemn than ever, went down the row. "What's the answer?" he asked the first stork.

"I—I confess I don't know," said the stork looking foolish.

"Next!" said Mr. Crane sharply, turning to his neighbor.

"Me either," said the second stork, shaking his head. "I don't know."

"Next!" said the Crane.

"No! I don't know either."

And so it went on down the line until last Mr. Crane reached an old, old fellow who looked as though he was about to go to sleep.

"What's the difference between a jumping-jack and a baby?" asked Mr. Crane.

"Well," answered old Daddy Stork, slowly. "There's enough difference so that I should never mistake one for the other."

"Aha," smiled Mr. Crane. "That's the answer, Daddy. You get the nice soft pinky-blue silk comfort. I'm afraid if I gave it to some of these other stupid fellows they might wrap a jumping-jack up in it to deliver to a family on earth, instead of a nice, soft, pink baby. Now begone, all of you. There won't be any more comforts made until goose-plucking time is over and more soft down comes flying up to the sky for my fairy workers to use. Well, well, I do believe there's more coming now. Mrs. Brown must be having a plucking. I heard her say she needed new holsters the other day and some of the softest feathers have run away. They know where to come."

A whole flock of feathers came blowing in at the windows and doors of the factory, so the storks waited.

YOUR NOSE

Common Sense Ways to Keep Well

Defective drainage and ventilation
of the upper air passages in the nose is one of the factors causing colds.

The normal healthy nasal passages should be large enough to allow free entrance of all the air required by a person in breathing, whether at rest or during exertion. In the latter case, fortunately, the tissues have the power of contracting and thus making the passages larger.

The inner wall of each nasal passage is the septum or partition and is made of bone and cartilage. From the outer wall of each passage project two prominent, bony, curved bodies, the turbinates.

These turbinate bodies are irregular in size and shape. They add a great deal to the surface over which the air passes. In them are partly located the nerves of smell. The ventilation or free passage of air through the nose and in and out of its cavities may be diminished or destroyed by twists, curvatures, and folding of the septum or by bony or cartilaginous growths projecting into these cavities, or by overgrowth of the adenoids or tumors or membraous thickening of some sort.

Such obstructions in nasal ventilation prevent proper evaporation of the mucus. Consequently this accumulates in masses and drops into the throat or is blown out by the person frequently.

These conditions produce all the symptoms of a chronic cold and they invite the onset of more acute ailments from various infections, since germs are apt to grow rapidly in such spaces full of abnormal secretations.

In these days of adulteration, first thing we know they'll be running milk trains without a cowcatcher.—

FIVE SACKS OF MAIL TAKEN IN WHITING, IND.

Three Armed Bandits in Daring Robbery, Early Yesterday.

By Associated Press Local Wire
Chicago, Feb. 1.—Five sacks of mail believed to be registered were stolen by three armed bandits, who after firing one shot, stopped a mail clerk in Ohio street, Whiting, Ind., this morning, as he was en route from the Pennsylvania depot to the post office, according to reports to the Chicago police.

According to Sergeant John Benak of the Whiting police, the bandits waited until the mail train had pulled away. The mail clerk piled the bags into a small wheel car and was about a block away from the station when the hand car containing the three men drove alongside of him.

One of the robbers fired a shot into the air and commanded the clerk to stop. The messenger held up his hands and the other bandits jumped from their automobile and threw the sacks into the machine and disappeared in the direction of Chicago.

A description of the bandits given by the messenger was that each robber was about 19 or 20 years old and of medium height. All wore stocking caps and two wore army overcoats.

FOOD LESSON NO. 1

Marvelous Quality of Milk Used in GOOD LUCK

On the famous Jelke dairy farm near Dundee, Ill., in the beautiful Fox River Valley—the most famed dairy district in the world—is a herd of pure bred, pedigreed Holstein cows.

Holstein cows are the best milk producers in the bovine world, and these cows are aristocrats of their kind.

Scientific methods of feeding, modern dairy equipment and all the arts of the modern milk-producer unite to make their milk of perfect quality.

It is milk from these cows and from similar herds on adjoining farms, for which the Jelke Dairy Farm serves as a model, that forms the largest portion of the most remarkable food product on the market today—Jelke GOOD LUCK.

It is because of the purity—the care taken in the selection of its nutritious ingredients, and the delicious flavor that you should use

NEWS FROM DIXON

SUGGEST NEW RULES TO GOVERN BUSINESS MEN'S TOURNAMENTS

Rights of Players Under All Conditions Are Outlined.

Volley ball is the same in one city as in another and wherever business men congregate to play the old game there is something doing. Several associations have made slight changes in the rules or made additional rules to govern the play. With the starting of a new volley ball tournament among the Dixon business men it is only fitting and proper that new rules should also regulate the contest, so the following already adopted by several associations are suggested:

1. The teams in the business men's volley ball tournament shall be selected upon their prowess as kickers only.

2. No player shall be considered competent who does not criticize his captain or fellow players.

3. In serving the ball, efficiency is rated at 99% if two out of 6 serves go over the net.

4. Each player must notify the captain in advance the position and space he will cover during the game and may without notice, usurp two or more players' territory.

5. Spikers are not responsible for net drives but are urged to blame passers or losing the point.

6. All players must watch the ball closely and yell "out of bounds" or "outside" if they are too tired to make the play.

7. Whenever a referee calls a player or for touching the net, all players on that side must have their disapproval until the referee changes his mind.

8. A player can only be reprimanded by his captain once in each game—if a captain violates this rule he does so at his own risk.

9. General rules of conduct. Calling names, kicking at opponents, deliberate conscientious playing, will enhance the players estimation in the minds of his spectators and is the only means of securing a place on the best team.

10. The right of any player to ignore any or all rules is expected.

2. Thou shalt not alibi.

3. Thou shalt not gloat over winning.

4. Thou shalt not be a rotten loser.

5. Thou shalt not take unfair advantage.

6. Thou shalt not ask odds thou art not willing to give.

7. Thou shalt always be ready to give thine opponent the shade.

8. Thou shalt not underestimate an opponent or overestimate yourself.

9. Remember that the game is the thing, and that he who thinketh otherwise is a mucker and no true sportsman.

10. Honor the game thou playest for he who playeth the game straight and hard wins even though he loses.

"FLU" GERMS

Authorities Issue Warning 274 New Cases Reported.

To guard against pneumonia and influenza every precaution is necessary. The slightest cold neglected for even one day often results fatally.

Carelessness in allowing a simple cold to drift down into your chest and lungs gives you less than a fighting chance for the doctor to pull you through.

The danger season is here. Damp fogs, frosts, snow, slushy rains assist the pneumonia and influenza germ in bowling you over.

DAVE SANDERS, range rider on the D Bar Lazy R outfit, and his pal, BOB HART, are in hot pursuit of a gambler, AL MILLER, and his confederate, George Doble, who have stolen Sanders' pet pony, Chiquito. In response to an appeal from JOYCE CRAWFORD they rescue her father, EMERSON CRAWFORD, owner of the D Bar Lazy R ranch, who has been captured by his enemy, BRADLEY STEELMAN, a rival ranch owner. Bob and Dave resume the hunt for the horse thieves.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX
The pursuit took the riders across a wide, undulating plain above which danced the dry heat of the desert. Lizards sunned themselves on flat rocks. A rattlesnake slid toward the cover of a prickly pear. The bleached bones of a cow shone white beside the trail.

"No use, Bob," said Dave, while they were cooking supper. "They're gone. They're gone."

"Dug's payin' off today, boys," Russell told them. "You'll find him round in the Boston Emporium."

The form settled first with Hart, after which he turned to the page in his pocket notebook that held the account of Sanders.

He stepped to look down sarcastically at the new boots Sanders was wearing.

"I see you've bought you a new pair of boots," he said in a heavy, domineering voice.

The big fellow laid a paper on the breast of the cowpuncher. "Here's a bill for a pair of boots you charged to the old man's account—eighteen dollars. I got it just now at the store. You'll dig up."

It was the custom for riders who came to town to have the supplies they needed charged to their employers against wages due them. Doble took it for granted that Sanders had done this, which was contrary to the orders he had given his outfit. He did not know the young man had lost his boots while rescuing Crawford and had been authorized by him to get another pair in place of them.

Nor did Dave intend to tell him. Here was a chance to even the score against the foreman.

"See you later," he shouted, and leaped into his saddle.

The foreman wasted no breath in futile rage. He strode to the nearest hitching-post and his horse's hoofs pounded down the road in pursuit.

Sanders was riding the same bronco he had used to follow the horse thieves. It had been under a saddle most of the time for a week and was far from fresh. Before he had gone a mile he knew that the foreman would catch up with him.

He was riding for Gunsight Pass. It was necessary to get there before Doble reached him. Otherwise he would have to surrender or fight, and neither of these fitted in with his plans.

By the time the foreman showed against the skyline at the entrance to the pass the younger man had disappeared.

The D Bar Lazy R foreman found out at once what had become of him. A crisp voice gave clear directions.

"That'll be far enough. Stop right where you're at or you'll notice trouble pop."

The words came, it seemed to Doble, out of the air. He looked up. Two great boulders lay edge to edge beside the path. Through a narrow rift the blue nose of a forty-five foot truded. Back of it glittered a pair of steady, steady eyes.

"Come outa there and shell out that eighteen dollars," demanded Doble.

"Nothin' doin', Dug."

The foreman cursed, fluently, expensively, passionately.

Suddenly Doble gave up. He wheeled his horse and began to descend the steep slope. His soul was filled with chagrin and fury at the defeat this stripling had given him.

CHAPTER XI
Dave knew he was stubborn. Not many men would have come on such a wild-goose chase to Denver in the hope of getting back a favorite horse worth so little in actual cash. But he meant to move to his end intelligently.

If Miller and Doble were in the city they would be hanging out at some saloon or gambling-house.

His knowledge of their habits took him to that part of town below Lawrence Street. While he chatted with

Later in the day the foreman met the owner of the D Bar Lazy R brand.

"That young scoundrel Sanders beat you outa eighteen dollars," he said, with a sneer of triumph.

Doble had heard the story of what Dave and Bob had done for Crawford and of how the wounded boy had been taken to the cattleman's home and nursed there.

"Sanders gets a pair of eighteen dollar boots, then jumps the town before I find out about it."

Crawford started to speak, but Doble finished his story.

"Punny he didn't tell you I gave him the boots?"

"You—what?" The foreman snapped the question out with angry incredulity.

The foreman was furious. But some instinct warned him that unless he wanted to break with Crawford completely he must restrain his impulse to rip loose.

CHAPTER X
Dave stood on the fence of one of the shipping pens of the Albuquerque stockyards and used a prod pole to guide the bawling cattle below. The Fifty-Four Quarter Circle was loading a train of beef steers and cows for Denver. Just how he was going to manage it Dave did not know, but he intended to be aboard that freight when it pulled out for the mile high town in Colorado.

A middle-aged man in wrinkled corduroys and a pinched-in white hat drove up to the fence. "How're they coming, Sam?" he asked the foreman in charge.

"We'd ought to be movin' by noon, Mr. West."

"Fine. I've decided to send Garrison in charge. If I knew where to find a good man—"

"I'M THE MAN YOU'RE LOOKING FOR, MR. WEST."

of a cattle train rolling eastward. He was second in command of a shipment consigned to the Denver Terminal Stockyards Company.

CHAPTER XI
The stars were out long before Dave's train drew into the suburbs of Denver. It crawled interminably through squalid residence sections, warehouses, and small manufactories, coming to a halt at last in a wilderness of tracks on the border of a small, narrow stream flowing sluggishly between wide banks cut in the clay.

his foot on the rail, a glass of beer in front of him, he made inconspicuous inquiries of bartenders. It did not take him long to strike the trail.

"Two fellows I knew in the cattle country said they were coming to Denver. Wonder if they did. One of 'em was a big fat guy name of Miller—kinda pols when he walks. Other's small and has a glass eye. Called himself George Doble when I knew him."

"Come in here 'most every day—both of 'em. Waitin' for the Festival of Mountain and Plain to open up. Got some kinda concession. They look to yours truly like—"

The bartender pulled himself up short and began polishing the top of the bar vigorously. He was a gossip soul, and more than once his tongue had got him into trouble.

"They been quarrellin' a good deal to gether. I expect the combination is about ready to bust up," he whispered confidentially.

"Quarrellin'? What about?"

"Oh, I dunno. They act like they're sore as a bull at each other. Honest, I thought they was goin' to mix it yesterday. I breezed up wit' a bottle an' they kinda cooled off."

Dave did not care how much they quarreled or how soon they parted after he had got back his horse. Until that time he preferred that they would give him only one trail to follow instead of two.

Later in the evening he met Henry B. West.

"Say, Mr. West, if I find a hawss that's been stole from me, how can I get it back?"

"Some one steal a hawss from you?"

Dave told his story. West listened to a finish.

"I know a lawyer here. We'll ask him what to do," the ranchman said.

They found the lawyer at the Athletic Club. West stated the case.

"Your remedy is to replevin. If they fight, you'll have to bring witnesses to prove ownership."

"Bring witnesses from Malapi? Why I can't do that," says Dave staggered. "I ain't got the money. Why can't I just take the hawss? It's mine."

"The law doesn't know it's yours."

Dave left much depressed. Of course the lawyers would go to a lawyer, and of course he would tell them to fight. The law was a damned queer thing. It made the recovery of his property so costly that the crooks who stole it could laugh at him.

The law to recover flashed to his brain like a wave of light. He must get possession. All he had to do was to steal his own horse and take for the hills. If the thieves found him later—and the chances were that they would not even attempt pursuit if he let them know who he was—he would force them to the expense of going to law for Chiquito. What was sauce for the goose must be for the gander, too.

Dave's tramp had carried him across the Platte into North Denver. On his way back he passed a corral close to the railroad tracks. He turned in to look over the horses.

The first one his eyes fell on was Chiquito.
